/This source, by a native Paiute woman who preached the cause of her tribe through the United States following the Bannock War, is a very personal record of her life as a native and the encounter of her tribe with Western culture as exemplified by the U. S. Military. Although there is a good deal of incidental ethnographic material in the book, most, if not all, of it may be found in other sources processed for the NR13 Northern Paiute file. -- Analyst/

/This source is an evaluation of ethnic spreads within recent times, based principally on the literature. Yokuts and Northern Paiute are two of the groups considered. Since the material is secondary and interpretative, this source has not been processed. -- Analyst/
